The scanning rails are the most common supports for the price labelling at the shelf. They consist in a clear front side, which protects the label, and a back side which is to be fastened onto various structures - usually shelf edges. In this chapter you will find a wide range of rails, suitable for the multitude of shelves existing on the market. The scanning rails can be ordered in any length (maximum 3 meters) and in any color according to the RAL grid, including clear. As a general rule, for the scanning rails which are not available from stock, the minimum quantity for an order is starting from 500 to 1000 meters/model/color. For a complete description of an order, we need the following information: model, color (in RAL codification), length per piece. It is very important to ask for samples and test them on the actual shelves or systems before placing an order. Drawing and pictures from the catalogue are for presentation only. All prices from this chapter are referred to an ordered quantity of 100 meters delivered in pieces of minimum 500 mm. Shorter lengths delivery are subject of extra costs: 5% (250-499 mm), 10% (100-249 mm), 15% (<99 mm).

Adhesive profiles

The DBR rails with adhesive back (usually fitted with one or two lines of adhesive foam, depending on the rail height) may be fastened onto various surfaces. On request we can also deliver transparent rails with clear film adhesive on the back. The grip is a fold on the upper part of the clear front, which allows an easier opening for the label changing, acting as a lever, when pulled out with the nails.

The latest trend in retail is represented by the electronic price tags for the shelf. This system is already used in many stores with huge benefits, despite the important investment needed. It is well known that this system is able to change thousands of price marking in a store within few seconds with less human effort and no paper.

There are several manufacturers of such labels with various distribution and market share, according to country or region.

Every model requires a different type of accessories, like: extruded profiles, clips, pockets, holders etc. If you have decided to invest in such a system, please give us a call because we certainly have the know-how to deliver various accessories and solutions that might make your job easier.
